

TWO KILLED WHEN CAR HITS AUTO

ROSCOE MAN AND SON MEET INSTANT DEATH; OTHERS CRITICALLY INJURED

LITTLE HOPE FOR RECOVERY OF AT LEAST ONE TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL

W. H. Hamilton and Son Leroy Dead--Anna Hamilton Hurt So She Is Not Expected to Live, and Condition of Mrs. Hamilton and Blanche Matheney, a Cousin, Very Serious.

WERE ON PLEASURE JAUNT FROM ROSCOE COMING, IT IS SUPPOSED, TO CHARLEROI

Two persons were instantly killed, one probably fatally injured, two others hurt so they may die, and two children somewhat injured, when Charleroi car No. 3606 of the Pittsburgh-Charleroi line, ran into an automobile at Beechwood Park crossing a half mile south of Speers Sunday afternoon at about 1:50 o'clock.

THE DEAD.

William H. Hamilton, of Roscoe, driver and owner of the machine; aged 43 years.

Roy Hamilton, son of W. H. Hamilton; aged 22 years.

THE INJURED.

Mrs. W. H. Hamilton, aged about 40 years, cut about head, chest crushed and injured about the hips. Hope for recovery

Anna Hamilton, aged 22 years, skull fractured above left eye. Slight chance to live.

Mary Hamilton, 7 years old, burned about the face and body by exploding gasoline. Not serious.

Robert Hamilton, 12 years old, cut about the head. Injuries not fatal.

Blanche Matheney, aged 19 years of McKeesport, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, right arm broken, skull fractured. Hope for recovery.

The party left Roscoe shortly afternoon for a pleasure drive in Mr. Hamilton's five passenger Premier automobile. The two children were seated on small stools in front of the rear seat. It is supposed the party was coming to Charleroi. At the Beechwood crossing, it is stated, they waited on some street cars to pass, then the machine was started across the track. The large interurban car in charge of Motorman John Weibel and Conductor Thomas Bromwich was approaching south, but supposedly was not noticed by the driver of the automobile until he was near the tracks, when it is thought he became confused and unable to throw on the reverse lever.

The motorman realized the danger, but too late, and the trolley car struck the automobile a terrible crash about midway, hurling the occupants aside several feet, and totally wrecking the machine. The trolley car was stopped almost instantly by the impact and gasoline escaping from the automobile directly in front of the street car, took fire. Little Mary Hamilton had been thrown in the midst of these flames, but with rare presence of mind Motorman Weibel seized her and dragged her forth before her clothing had become ignited. The car front had taken fire but the flames were quickly extinguished.

Meanwhile temporary aid was tendered the injured persons, and a telegram was sent to Charleroi for medical assistance. A special car was hurriedly prepared by Supt. E. C. Fitch and run up from the car barn containing two physicians, Drs. A. O. Davis, and H. J. Repman. Dr. J. K. Smith drove to the scene. Dr. J. B. Barth was called and went to the Monessen-Charleroi hospital from Charleroi.

Mr. Hamilton, the young man killed with his father in the automobile wreck Sunday afternoon, was to have graduated Tuesday evening from Douglas Business college, Charleroi, in the shorthand department, attaining what was one of his proudest ambitions. The graduating class was in the midst of preparations for the commencement exercises on Tuesday evening, and young Hamilton had been taking an active part in them. His sudden death has thrown arrangements into chaos.

Young Hamilton was one of the most popular members of the graduating class. He started in school in February in the shorthand department, and by hard work was able to finish his course. He did not know whether he would be able to pass until a week ago last Friday, however, and when he learned he had been successful, his joy knew no bounds. He was a crippled young man, and frail looking, but intensely ambitious, and had never been known to fail in an examination, or in any object he undertook to accomplish.

The commencement exercises will be held as usual, but a vacant chair will be draped for the deceased member, and the program is being altered somewhat. It is expected that each member of the class will be attired partly in mourning. The class will in all probability attend the funeral in a body.

A meeting of the class has been called for tonight at 7 o'clock when arrangements will be made for commencement.

M'CLAY ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF THE COUNTY COMMITTEE

Committee of Fifteen is Appointed to Select Conferees to Name Successor to Congressman Tener

At the meeting of the Republican county committee at Washington this forenoon J. Frank McClay was elected county chairman, O. M. Henderson, Esq., secretary and Geo. E. Lockhart, treasurer. One hundred and ten members of the committee were present. The matter of selecting the six conferees to help elect a candidate for Congress in the district to succeed J. K. Tener, was assigned to an executive committee of 15 to be named by the chairman later.

An amendment was offered to instruct this committee to support Assemblyman C. E. Carothers for Congress, but was ruled out on a point of order. The delegates voted, however, that the committee support a Washington county man for the nomination when they meet the conferees of the other counties to vote for a candidate.

R. E. Koehler was temporary chairman of the meeting and W. B. Hancher temporary secretary.

Not only is the Crystal city plant the best the Pittsburg Plate Glass company owns, but it is undoubtedly the finest in the world for the manufacture of plate glass. It is the No. 9 factory.

TWENTY-TWO HORSES DESTROYED BY FIRE OF SUPPOSED INCENDIARY ORIGIN

CHARLEROI COAL COMPANY LOSES

Stable Boss Discovers Flames and Has to Crawl Out Rear Window--One Horse Saves Itself From Cremation by Breaking Halter and Plunging Out Through Flames.

FIREMEN CALLED OUT, BUT NOT UNTIL IT WAS TOO LATE FOR THEM TO DO ANYTHING

In a fire evidently of incendiary origin, the stable, 22 head of horses, feed, harness and other equipment of the Charleroi Coal Works were burned Sunday morning between 4 and 5 o'clock, entailing a loss to the company of $8,000. The stable was situated on the outskirts of the town, in the neighborhood of Woodlawn avenue and Twelfth street. It was burned to the ground and the stable-boss, Henry Ream, who slept in the stables had a narrow escape in getting out. But one horse was saved.

The fire was discovered by Mr. Ream at about 4:20 o'clock. He was sleeping in the rear of the stable, in the farthest corner from the door. Awakened by the smell of smoke, he discovered the front of the stable a mass of flames, and the horses trying to break away from their tethers. Seeing it was of no use to make any effort to save the horses, so far had the fire progressed, he escaped through a rear window. The alarm was turned in immediately, and members of the fire department arrived quickly on the scene but not soon enough to do anything. The roof fell in and the horses were cremated all but one, which managed to break its halter, and escape through the door.

Every evidence points to the fire being the work of an incendiary. It started at the front door. The stable is far away from any houses, and it would hardly be possible for rats to carry matches that distance.

Superintendent Jesse K. Johnston of the Coal works this morning stated that there were suspicions of the guilty person, and that rigid investigations would be made.

River; Drowns Foreigner Fails to Accomplish Feat on Which He Wanted to Wager

When Joseph Bosock, 22 years old, an Eleventh street Slavish resident, attempted to swim the river from point near the Charleroi Coal bridge yesterday afternoon, he miscalculated his ability, and was drowned. The man, it is said, was intoxicated and wanted to bet another $5.00 that he could swim the stream. A companion with him was said to be intoxicated, and Bosock pulled off his clothing and waded in. About 30 feet out from shore, he went down and failed to come up. A boy who was in bathing managed to grasp him, but could not hold the man up until assistance arrived.

The accident occurred at about 2:30 o'clock, and about 4 o'clock the body was recovered by Mike Spridik, who dove for it. He secured the body in his first dive in about 10 feet of water, and it was taken to the undertaking rooms of Correl and Crowley. Coroner James T. Heffernan was notified. Bosock was a Macbeth-Emana chimney worker, and had no relatives living here. Adam Patrick, a boy of about 10 years and Louis Peters about 17 years old, saw the occurrence and were unable to save the man from drowning.

A Disastrous Period

Sunday was essentially a day of disaster in this community. From the burning of the mine stable, in which 26 horses were cremated, in the early hours of the morning, followed by the disastrous and fatal auto-wreck near town, until evening, the day was fraught with accidents and fatalities. A man drowned in the rear vicinity, together with numerous other minor accidents and casualties, completed a period that seemed to bring with it a baneful influence.

The dreadful auto accident above Speers, whereby two persons were instantly killed and five others more or less seriously injured, should serve as a warning to the owners and drivers of machines in this community. There is scarcely a mile of road anywhere around here that is not beset with danger. Railroad and trolley crossings, sharp curves, steep grades and crowded streets—all present danger to life and limb at all hours of the day and night.

The State road up Maple Creek, with numerous sharp curves and grade, which is the favorite boulevard for autos for all the towns of this section, is destined to be the scene of disastrous accident unless each and every exercises due caution.

Police officers complain of indifference to speed regulations and defiance of other laws for the safety of the public. These should be strictly enforced and instead of opposing the officials every effort should be made to support them. The safety of the public demands more stringent observance of the law.

Marks an Era

Not since the Civil War, not even during President Roosevelt's administration, has a session of Congress accomplished more constructive legislation than the one just ended. President Taft advocated and stood sponsor for more reform and beneficial measures than any of his predecessors since the Civil War, and the most of them have passed and will become laws. Among others are the following:

Striking revision of the railroad laws, including the creation of a commerce court.

Submitting Arizona and New Mexico as separate States.

Authorizing the establishment of postal savings banks.

Giving to the President unlimited authority to withdraw public lands for conservation purposes.

Providing for publicity of campaign contributions.

Authorizing the issue of $20,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness to complete reclamation projects.

Creating a bureau of mines.

Extending the activities of the tariff board and appropriating $250,000 for its use.

Looking to the suppression of traffic in "white slaves."

Authorizing the entry of the surface of coal lands.

Creating a commission to consider economies in the administration of the Federal Government.

Providing a new tariff system for the Philippine Islands.

Legislation which ultimately is expected to give practical prohibition to the Hawaiian Islands.

Several of the important measures advocated by President Taft failed of passage, but when it is remembered that over 27,000 bills, public and private, were presented to Congress, it could hardly be expected that all of the administrative program could be carried out. The session just closed is an important one, and will mark an era in American history, as many of the measures passed are the beginning of important social reforms.

Would Make Good

While several candidates have been endorsed for the position of Director of the new Bureau of Mines, which established by the recent session of Congress, there is one not yet mentioned, but who would be highly capable and very satisfactory to miners and operators alike in this section. This is Jesse K. Johnston of Charleroi, superintendent of the Charleroi Coal Works and all the mining interests affiliated with the Pittsburg Plate Glass company.

The Mail has not approached Mr. Johnston on the subject, and has no authority to announce his name as a candidate, but we believe that no one is more capable, nor would fill the position with more ability than our fellow townsmen. Mr. Johnston is recognized as one of the most expert mining engineers throughout the bituminous district, and his advice and counsel is sought far and wide. He has made an exhaustive study of modern safety appliances in mining, and his system of underground life-saving stations in coal mines, which was embodied in a speech before Congress by Representative John K. Tener, has attracted wide attention in mining circles. Mr. Johnston may not be at all in accord with such an appointment, but there is no more capable expert than he, and as head of the Mining Bureau substantial results would follow.

If there is cold weather, with a prediction of warm weather it's "relief;" if it's warmer than we imagine Satan's heat can be, and a cooler atmosphere is expected, it's "relief;" if it's raining in torrents, and the weather man says a clear sky is on the program, it's "relief;" if we haven't had any rain for weeks and to weep would be a waste of water, the weather prognosticator says rain, it's "relief." Now what does such a word mean to an ignorant man?

The Ham Fair at Paris.

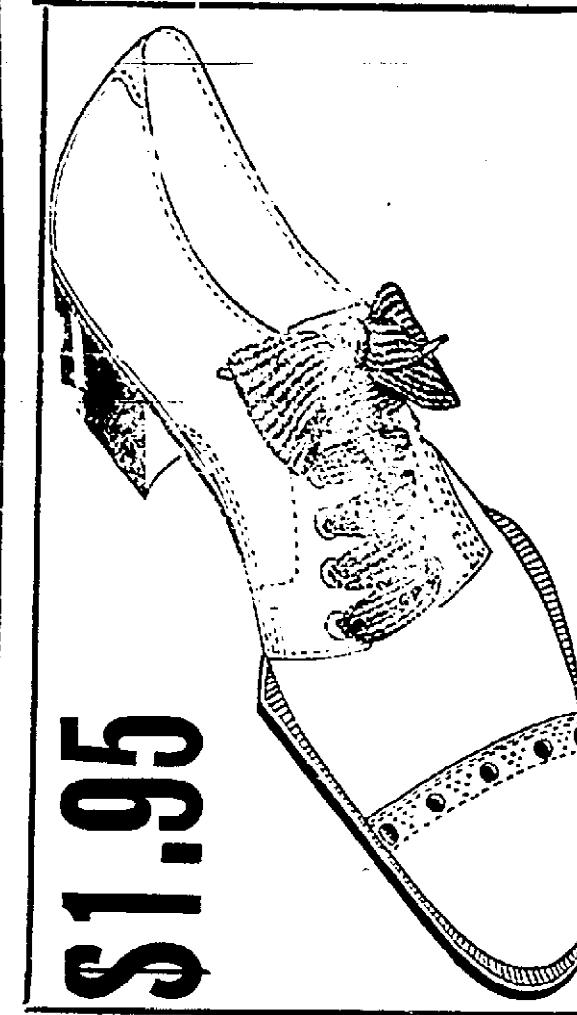

A feature of Parisian life is the ham fair which is held on the Boulevard Richard Le Noir. The name of this fair is wholly misleading, for as far as I have ever seen hams are the very last thing any one ever buys there. Old brass and copper curios, quaint jewelry, rare china, lace, tapestries and books are what most people go out to seek, and a slight not to be easily forgotten is the long, wide boulevard lined with rathshack-like stalls laden with every possible kind of lumber and presided over by the most rapacious of brocanteurs. Out of piles of valueless lumber Americans and English diligently seek for their pet kind of curios, and there is not an artist in Paris who cannot point to some bit of furniture in his or her studio and say with pride, "I got that for 5 francs at the ham fair." No one ever pays more than 5 francs, I notice, but, alas, every year these five franc bargains are becoming more rare, and even as housekeeping in Paris grows more and more costly so does the furnishing of one's house to keep.—London Queen.

Only a Question of Possibility. Among the customers of a tea store opened in the northwest part of the city the other night was a man who, after buying a pound of coffee, handed a counterfeit half dollar to the shopkeeper.

"This money is counterfeit; I'm sorry, sir," said the shopkeeper.

"Yes; I know it," replied the customer, grinning. "Get it here one day last week, and I've been saving it for you." Then, noting the smile upon the shopkeeper's face, the customer said, evidently offended, "Perhaps you doubt my word?"

"Oh, not at all, sir; not at all. I couldn't doubt the word of so truthful a man. I was simply smiling because I wondered how it was possible for you to have got the money here. This place was opened only night before last."

Thereupon the customer departed, hastily after producing a good coin and slipping the counterfeit into his own pocket.—Philadelphia Times.

Lancashire Humor. There was a Lancashire collier who went out on Sunday with his wheelbarrow because, as he said, "I've lost mi dog, an' a felly looks sich a fool gooin' a-walkin' bi himself."

Then there was the workingmen's club committee which wanted to endorse the accounts "audited and found correct and入上over" and the customer who, on being told that the price of candles had gone up owing to the war, asked whether they were "fighthin' bi candle leet."

Also one recalls the laggard Lancashire lover who, when asked for a kiss, said he was "gooin' to do it in a bit," and the old ladies who praised a certain Darwen clergyman as "a grand burler," and of the orator who translated "Dieu et mon droit" into "Evil be to him what evil thinks!"—Lancashire Life and Character, by Frank Orme.

Diamonds Under Water. An imitation diamond is never so brilliant as a genuine stone. If your eye is not experienced enough to detect the difference, a very simple test is to place the stone under water. The imitation stone is practically extinguished, while a genuine diamond sparkles even under water and is distinctly visible. When possible, place a genuine stone beside the possible imitation under water, and the contrast will be apparent to the least experienced eyes.

Consistent Theory. "Don't you believe the husband is the head of the house and should have the final say?"

"Certainly I do."

"Then why don't you come out in the open and say so?"

"Because my wife won't let me." Exchange.

The arrow that pierces the eagle's breast is often made of his own feathers.

Tennyson Disturbed. This story is told in Robert H. Sherard's book "My Friends the French."

"A granddaughter of Wordsworth, being full of admiration for the young poet who was to succeed her grandfather in laureate honors, was once taken to see Mr. Tennyson by Mrs. Taylor, the wife of another poet of some distinction. Tennyson received them very badly, showing great irritation at being disturbed, and when Mrs. Taylor rallied him on his manner he said: 'Madam, I am a poor man, and as I can't afford to buy the Times, I hire it from the stationer's. He charges me a penny for it, which entitles me to keep it for an hour. Why will people always select just that hour to come and call upon me?' After which he flung out of the room, leaving Mrs. Tennyson to apologize for his brusquerie."

Currency In China.

Writing from the interior of China, a traveler says: "Currency is primitive to a degree. Lump silver only is used and copper 'cash.' Coined money is not current. Even in Honan city, which is distant only two days by rail from Peking, lump silver, the same cumbersome currency that has been used for centuries, is still employed. It is cut into small pieces by hammer and chisel. Every town and village has its own weights and scales, and there is no pretense at uniformity."

The Man and the Parrot.

Exasperated Purchaser—Didn't you guarantee that this parrot would repeat every word he heard?

Bird Dealer—Certainly I did.

"But he doesn't repeat a single word."

"He repeats every word he hears, but he never hears any. He is as deaf as a post."

Life's Percentages.

It sometimes happens that a man plays an errorless game because he accepts mighty few chances. The man in the right garden is pretty sure to have a better fielding record than the shortstop.—Atchison Globe.

Outdone.

"He doted on Alice and would have married her but for her mother."

"Ah! Her mother!"

"Yes; her mother was still more attractive."

The Origin of the "Marseillaise." In the reign of terror under Fronde and Barras, when hundreds of victims were carved by the guillotine and the people rose against the aristocracy, was born the hymn of France, composed by Rouget de l'Isle. He was an officer of engineers and at a banquet was asked to compose a war song. He wrote it in his room that night before going to bed, and the next morning his hostess, the wife of the mayor of Strassburg, tried it on a piano, and in the afternoon the orchestra of the theater played it in the square of Strassburg, where it created much excitement and gathered many volunteers. Rouget called it a song for the Army of the Rhine, but subsequently it was sung by a regiment of volunteers, mostly assassins, who marched out of Marseilles to Paris, where it was appropriated by the capital and called the "Hymne des Marseillais." But Joseph Rouget, the author, died in poverty.—Desbrier Welch in Harper's Magazine.

Westminster Hall.

Westminster hall, England's old hall of the king's justice, is one of the world's notable historical shrines. Built four centuries before Columbus sailed for America, burned, restored, remodeled, it has seen more history in the making than perhaps any other building west of Rome. Here the second Edward was expelled from his throne. Here Richard II. was deposed, Charles I. condemned and Cromwell haled as lord protector, whose head, if the legend is authentic, was afterward exposed from one of the hall's pinnacles. Westminster hall was the scene of the trial of Warren Hastings. In it sentence of death was pronounced on William Wallace, Sir Thomas More, Somerset, Essex, Stratford and Guy Fawkes.—New York World.

Alkarazza. Alkarazza is the name given to vessels of very porous earthenware which when filled with water are always moist outside and owing to the evaporation of the water on their surface always keep their contents cool. Alkarazza can be made from any good potter's clay by mixing with it 10 per cent of its weight, dry, of very fine sawdust and then working it. On burning the sawdust is destroyed and the clay thereby left porous.

The Animals in the Zoo.

The sleeping hours of the animals at the zoological gardens in Regent's park vary as much, according to the families to which they belong, as do their other characteristics and habits. The orang outang goes to bed at sunset, draping his head in a blanket and refusing to see visitors after dusk. It is also an early riser. With the lions, tigers and other members of the cat tribe the night finds them at their liveliest, and they sleep most between the midday meal and supper time. The eagles go to sleep just about the time their neighbors in the owl cage are waking up, while the bears during the winter months apparently sleep all day and night too. The residents of the monkey house object seriously to being disturbed after dark, and if one of the keepers happens to take a light into their quarters they send him unmercifully. On the other hand, it would probably take a dynamite bomb to arouse the rhinoceros, and it is not uncommon, the keepers say, to find rats biting holes in its thick hide with impunity.—London Mail.

The Great Eastern.

The dimensions of the one-time world famous Great Eastern were as follows: Length, 692 feet; width, 83 feet; depth, 60 feet; tonnage, 24,000 tons; draft when unloaded, 20 feet; when loaded, 30 feet. She had paddle wheels fifty-six feet in diameter and was also provided with a four-bladed screw propeller of twenty-four feet diameter. She had accommodations for 800 first class, 2,000 second class and 1,200 third class passengers, 4,000 in all. Her speed was about eighteen miles an hour. The Great Eastern was finally broken up for old iron in the year 1880 after a checkered career of some thirty-one years.

Fair, but Stormy.

A gentleman boarded the Karori car at Kelburne avenue. Recognizing a friend on one of the seats, he nodded pleasantly and then said, "Well, what do you think of the weather?" "Oh, horrible!" was the reply. "And how is your wife today?" "She's just about the same, thank you!"—New Zealand Free Lance.

A Ban on Patterns.

"There is one kind of correspondence sometimes received by women clerks that makes heads of firms hopping mad," said the pretty stenographer. "That is dress patterns. They don't mind letters and magazines, but if a girl wants to keep on good terms with her employer and maybe keep her job she had better advise pattern companies to send their communications to some other address. I know one employer of about 100 girls who has put up notices in the workroom to the effect that no patterns can be received at that office. Not many men go that far, but all hold the same grudge against patterns. A girl who has a new dress to make up can't help spreading the pattern out the minute she gets it. Then every other woman in the office becomes interested. Nothing is so disorganized to women clerks as patterns. Nothing takes up more time that belongs to the firm, so you really can't blame the bosses for putting a ban on patterns."—New York Press.

Japan's National Beverage.

Sake is the national beverage of Japan. It has a peculiar flavor not comparable to any European drink, is made from fermented rice by an intricate process in winter time and contains from 11 to 14 per cent of alcohol. It is necessary constituent of every ceremonial Japanese dinner, is served in little, ampulla-like jars and drunk with much formality from squat, less sake cups containing approximately two ounces. To the European palate it tastes sour at first, but preference for it is readily acquire. Curiously enough, it has a much more powerful effect on the Japanese than on Europeans. A stronger variety, shochu, contains from 20 to 50 per cent of alcohol. Another form, mirin, is more or less a liqueur.—London Lancet.

His Recommendation.

Tom—Hello, Bill! I hear you have a position with my friends Skinner & Co.? Bill—Oh, yes; I have a position as collector there. Tom—That's first rate. Who recommended you? Bill—Oh, nobody. I told them that I once collected an account from you, and they instantly gave me the place.

Firmness of Purpose.

Firmness of purpose is one of the most necessary sinews of character and one of the best instruments of success. Without it genius wastes its efforts in a maze of inconsistencies.

A Paradox.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is a paradox? Pa—Well, my son, a coal stove is one kind of paradox. It won't burn until it is put up; then it won't burn until it is shaken down.—Chicago News.

Pottery and Secrecy.

In the royal manufactory of pottery at Meissen, Saxony, the work was formerly carried on with the utmost secrecy to prevent the processes from becoming known elsewhere. The establishment was a complete fortress, the portcullis of which was not raised day or night, no stranger being permitted to enter for any purpose whatever. Every workman, even the chief inspector, was sworn to silence. This injunction was formally repeated every month to the superior officers employed, while the workmen had constantly before their eyes in large letters the warning motto, "Be Secret Unto Death." It was well known that any person divulging the process would be imprisoned for life in the castle of Koenigstein. Even the king himself when he took strangers of distinction to visit the works was enjoined to secrecy. One of the foremen, however, escaped and assisted in establishing a manufactory in Vienna, from which the secrets spread all over Germany.

Her Diamond Necklace.

Brown is a very careful man. He is superlatively careful. So careful is he that he has insured his insurance money.

Now Brown has a wife. Wives have to be given birthday presents, and on his wife's first birthday after their marriage he gave her a beautiful diamond necklace. This was not as reckless as you might think, for each stone on the necklace represented a year of Mrs. Brown's life, and he let every one know that. And he arranged to give Mrs. Brown a new diamond each birthday. And he let the neighbors know that too.

He has just missed giving his wife a birthday present for the ninth successive year.

As to when greed will conquer pride and his wife will ask for another birthday present, we shall have to wait and see.—Pearson's.

The Salt Charm Failed.

Some three years before the Franco-German war broke out Count Seckendorff accompanied King William I. on his visit to Napoleon III. and was present at the celebrated déjeuner given in the Pavillon de Diane at Fontainebleau. King William, who was sitting next the empress, was asked by her to pass the salt, and in complying with this request he threw a little salt over his shoulder. Upon the empress exclaiming, "Why do you do that?" the king explained that in his country it was the custom to do so when passing the salt to ward off bad luck and any chance of a quarrel. The empress in a prettily turned speech at once replied, "But surely there is no danger of anything interfering with our friendship." In less than three years the Germans had crossed the Rhine.—London Spectator.

Why Not Pass the Plate?

They ought to pass the plate at church weddings. It comes natural to do it in church, and to do so would add a pretty and useful employment to the duties of the ushers, who always have a little spare time before the bride arrives. And, really, getting married is more expensive than ever, and though wedding presents are excellent in their way, what the young people usually need the most is cash. Instead of the list of gifts which the newspapers sometimes print we should read, "The collection yielded $4,000." That would be nice. It is much easier to store and care for money than plate and glass! And money always fits and there is no such thing as an embarrassing duplication of dollars.—Life.

He Saved the Patent Office.

When in the war of 1812 the British who had taken Washington, trained their guns upon the patent office, Dr. Thornton, throwing himself directly before the guns, cried:

"Are you Englishmen or Goths and Vandals? This is the patent office—a depository of the ingenuity and inventions of the American nation, in which the whole civilized world is interested. Would you destroy it? Then let the charge pass through my body."

And the building was spared. Twenty-four years afterward, however, it was destroyed by fire, together with everything in it.

Getting Down to Business.

Mistress (to new servant)—There are two things, Mary, about which I am very particular. They are truthfulness and obedience. Mary—Yes'm, and when you tell me to say you're not in when a person calls that you don't wish to see which is it to be, munificence or obedience?

Defined.

Pre-ocious Child—Papa, tell me what is numbing? Parent with a deep sigh—It is, my dear, when your mamma pretends to be very fond of me and puts no buttons on my shirt.

He who loves goodness harbors angels.—Emerson.

A Pearl String's Keen Eye.

The pearl stringer's eye becomes practiced in the detection of real and imitation pearls. One glance is usually sufficient. A genuine pearl has a hard look. It presents a sort of shell-like surface with an indescribable blush. This blush is so cleverly counterfeited in wax imitations that even those who are accustomed to handling pearls day after day are likely to be deceived.

In one of the large New York jewelry houses last winter a customer purchased a hand painted miniature set in a frame of imitation pearls. On examination it was found that several of the pearls had been slightly defaced, and the whole thing was sent to the manufacturing rooms for repairs. By chance it came under the eye of one of the pearl stringers, who instantly detected four genuine pearls in the circle of imitation ones about the picture. The frame had passed through a dozen expert hands without any one's noticing the presence of real pearls. No one could account for their being there. If they had not been detected the purchaser of the frame would have had a bargain, for the four genuine pearls were worth many times more than the picture and the rest of its setting.—New York Tribune.

Spirit of Young America.

A teacher in a Philadelphia public school narrated the following account of how an aspiring young Italian citizen was beginning to feel the effects of an American environment. The story, which was told at a teachers' association meeting, runs something like this:

Tony had been away from school about a week, and when he showed up one morning the teacher asked him where he had been.

"I ran away," said Tony. "Run away! What did you do that for?" asked the teacher.

"My father was going to lick me, so I thought I'd run away," was the reply.

The teacher by further questioning brought out the fact that Tony for some trifling dereliction had been threatened with a beating and had stayed away from home the best part of a week.

"But your father has the right to whip you," said the teacher.

"Yes, he may," added Tony, "but I was born in this country, and I don't want no foreigners to lick me."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Costa Rican Volcanoes.

Costa Rica has been subject to earthquakes for many years. Part of the republic is exceedingly mountainous, and in this part of the country there are more than a score of volcanoes, some of them dead, but a few that break out periodically. There are three or four that have been active for more than a century. Some of these are near San Jose, the capital. Costa Ricans have always believed that earthquakes which the country has experienced ever since it was first settled by Spanish adventurers, were caused by the volcanoes. There is good ground for this belief, because it has been noticed that earthquakes of more or less intensity followed the activity of these volcanoes. If the volcanic eruptions were violent the earthquakes were correspondingly severe.—Washington Post.

A Witty Retort.

A good story is told of two great Irishmen, the late Archibald Plunkett and Father Healy, the well known parish priest of Bray. Making their way together to Bray railroad station one morning, the priest urged that they should hurry, but the prelate's appeal to his watch convinced him that they had ample time. They arrived to see the train for Dublin disappearing. The archbishop's apologies were lavish. He pleaded that he had always had unbounded faith in his watch. "My dear Lord Plunkett," said Father Healy's rejoinder, "faith won't do without the good works."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Enthusiasm.

The organist sent a little boy to inquire of the minister what the first hymn would be. "Tell her," said the minister, "I would like 'Carol, Brothers, Carol.'"

The little boy thought he said "Howl, Brothers, Howl," and told the organist that the minister's selection was "Yell, Brothers, Yell."—New York Times.

Runs In the Family.

Mr. Agile (to Mr. Stoutman, running for a car)—Hello, old boy! I thought you were too lazy to run like that. Mr. Stoutman: "Agnidly." Easily explained, my dear boy. Laziness runs in our family.—Lippincott.

Stand Up in Roller Coaster Car and Get Fall of Several Feet

An explosion of an oil lamp at the home of Ellis Johnston in Gibsonton this morning at about 3 o'clock caused a fire which damaged a part of the house somewhat. The flames were discovered in time to prevent any serious conflagration.

Four foreigners from Monessen, Mike and John Halko, Hank Hubenec and Frank Yagich, boarded a car on the roller coaster at Eldora Park yesterday. Contrary to signs of warning, it is stated they stood up while the car was ascending the steep incline. This caused the car to topple over backward, throwing the occupants to the ground. As the car had not gained much height, the fall was only a few feet. Yagich sustained a slight scalp wound and the others were not hurt aside from a general shaking up. A doctor was called and dressed Yagich's wound.

Coroner James T. Heffran will probably hold the inquest on the death of William H. In view of the impending contest for the Republican nomination for Congress in this district to fill the vacancy made by Congressman John K. Tener's nomination for Governor, it is rumored that former Congressman E. F. Acheson is preparing to run as an independent candidate. There is likely to be a sharp contest for the Republian nomination between Assemblyman C. E. Garthers of Washington and J. Sharp Wilson of Beaver. In the case of either winning it is thought that much soreness will prevail, and with this contingency in view Mr. Acheson is said to be laying his plans to announce as an independent candidate.

TWO KILLED WHEN CAR HITS AUTO

ROSCOE MAN AND SON MEET INSTANT DEATH; OTHERS CRITICALLY INJURED

LITTLE HOPE FOR RECOVERY OF AT LEAST ONE TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL

W. H. Hamilton and Son Leroy Dead—Anna Hamilton Hurt So She Is Not Expected to Live—and Condition of Mrs. Hamilton and Blanche Matheney, a Cousin, Very Serious.

WERE ON PLEASURE JAUNT FROM ROSCOE COMING, IT IS SUPPOSED, TO CHARLEROI

Two persons were instantly killed, one probably fatally injured, two others hurt so they may die, and two children somewhat injured, when Charleroi car No. 3606 of the Pittsburgh-Charleroi line, ran into an automobile at Beechwood Park crossing a half mile south of Sparta Sunday afternoon at about 1:30 o'clock.

THE DEAD.

William H. Hamilton, of Roscoe, driver and owner of the machine; aged 43 years.

Roy Hamilton, son of W. H. Hamilton; aged 22 years.

THE INJURED.

Mrs. W. H. Hamilton, aged about 40 years, cut about head, chest crushed and injured about the hips. Hope for recovery.

Anna Hamilton, aged 24 years, skull fractured above left eye. Slight chance to live.

Mary Hamilton, 7 years old, burned about the face and body by exploding gasoline. Not serious.

Robert Hamilton, 12 years old, cut about the head. Injuries not fatal.

Blanche Matheney, aged 19 years of McKeesport, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, right arm broken, skull fractured. Hope for recovery.

The party left Roscoe shortly afternoon for a pleasure drive in Mr. Hamilton's five passenger Premier automobile. The two children were seated on small stools in front of the rear seat. It is supposed the party was coming to Charleroi. At the Beechwood crossing, it is stated, they waited on some street cars to pass, then the machine was started across the track. The large interurban car in charge of Motorman John Weibel and Conductor Thomas Bromwich was approaching south, but supposedly was not noticed by the driver of the automobile until he was near the tracks, when it is thought he became confused and unable to throw on the reverse lever.

The motorman realized the danger, but too late, and the trolley car struck the automobile a terrible crash about midway, hurling the occupants aside several feet, and totally wrecking the machine. The trolley car was stopped almost instantly by the impact and gasoline escaping from the automobile directly in front of the street car, took fire. Little Mary Hamilton had been thrown in the midst of these flames, but with rare presence of mind Motorman Weibel seized her and dragged her forth before her clothing had become ignited. The car front had taken fire but the flames were quickly extinguished.

Meanwhile temporary aid was tendered the injured persons, and a tele-

BOY KILLED IN WRECK WAS MEMBER OF CLASS TO GRADUATE TUESDAY

Leroy Hamilton Popular Student at Douglas College—Vacant Chair to Be Draped Commencement Night.

Leroy Hamilton, the young man killed with his father in the automobile wreck Sunday afternoon, was to have graduated Tuesday evening from Douglas Business college, Charleroi, in the shorthand department, attaining what was one of his proudest ambitions. The graduating class was in the midst of preparations for the commencement exercises on Tuesday evening, and young Hamilton had been taking an active part in them. His sudden death has thrown arrangements into chaos.

Young Hamilton was one of the most popular members of the graduating class. He started in school in February in the shorthand department, and by hard work was able to finish his course. He did not know whether he would be able to pass until a week ago last Friday, however, and when he learned he had been successful, his joy knew no bounds. He was a crippled young man, and frail looking, but intensely ambitious, and had never been known to fail in an examination, or in any object he undertook to accomplish.

The commencement exercises will be held as usual, but a vacant chair will be draped for the deceased member, and the program is being altered somewhat. It is expected that each member of the class will be attired partly in mourning. The class will in all probability attend the funeral in a body.

A meeting of the class has been called for tonight at 7 o'clock when arrangements will be made for commencement.

M'CLAY ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF THE COUNTY COMMITTEE

Committee of Fifteen is Appointed to Select Conferees to Name Successor to Congressman Tener

At the meeting of the Republican county committee at Washington this afternoon J. Frank McClay was elected county chairman, O. M. Henderson, Esq., secretary and Geo. E. Lockhart, treasurer. One hundred and ten members of the committee were present. The matter of selecting the six conferees to help elect a candidate for Congress in the district to succeed J. K. Tener, was assigned to an executive committee of 15 to be named by the chairman later.

An amendment was offered to instruct this committee to support Assemblyman C. E. Carothers for Congress, but was ruled out on a point of order. The delegates voted, however, that the committee support a Washington county man for the nomination when they meet the conferees of the other counties to vote for a candidate.

R. E. Koehler was temporary chairman of the meeting and W. E. Hanchar temporary secretary.

Starting in exactly the same place where a fire occurred about a year ago, flames did damage to about the extent of $100 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Leyda at 832 Shady avenue Saturday evening. The alarm was turned in by neighbors, both Mr. and Mrs. Leyda being down street and the firemen responded immediately. With chemicals the flames were easily extinguished, not having gained a good headway.

It is supposed the fire was started by rats chewing at matches. It originated in the stairway leading to the cellar, and was entirely confined to this part of the house. Some damage was done to the furniture by smoke.

The accident occurred at about 2:30 o'clock, and about 4 o'clock the body was recovered by Mike Spridik, who dove for it. He secured the body in his first dive in about 10 feet of water, and it was taken to the undertakers' rooms of Corral and Crowley. Coroner James T. Heffran was notified. Bosock was a Macheth-Evans chimney worker, and had no relatives living here. Adam Patrick, a boy of about 10 years and Louis Peters about 17 years old, saw the occurrence but were unable to save the man from drowning.

Superintendent R. O. Stillwell Is Transferred to Crystal City

Will Take Official Charge of Pittsburg Plate Company's No. 9 Plant on

July 15

R. O. Stillwell, who for a year and a half has been superintendent of the Charleroi factory, No. 6 of the Pittsburg Plate Glass works, has received notice of his transfer and promotion to the superintendence of the largest as well as most complete plant of the company at Crystal City, Mo. He will leave the first of July for a two week's outing at Mackinac and will take official charge on July 15. The name of Mr. Stillwell's successor as superintendent of the local factory has not been made public, but it is rumored a man will be brought here from some other place.

Mr. Stillwell came here with the resumption of the local factory, when the Tarentum plant burned down in October, 1908. He relieved J. A. Bechtel, who was transferred to Tarentum. Mr. Stillwell had been in Tarentum for 10 years, and has made a remarkable record while here. He and his family have made many friends in town who will regret their departure.

Not only is the Crystal city plant the best the Pittsburg Plate Glass company owns, but it is undoubtedly the finest in the world for the manufacture of plate glass. It is the No. 9 factory.

TWENTY-TWO HORSES DESTROYED BY FIRE OF SUPPOSED INCENDIARY ORIGIN

CHARLEROI COAL COMPANY LOSES VALUABLE ANIMALS EARLY SUNDAY

Stable Boss Discovers Flames and Has to Break Out Rear Window—One Horse Saves Itself From Cremation by Breaking Halter and Plunging Out Through Flames.

FIREMEN CALLED OUT, BUT NOT UNTIL IT WAS TOO LATE FOR THEM TO DO ANYTHING

In a fire evidently of incendiary origin, the fire progressed, he escaped through a rear window. The alarm was turned in immediately, and members of the fire department arrived quickly on the scene but not soon enough to do anything. The roof fell in and the horses were cremated all but one, which managed to break its halter, and escape through the door.

Every evidence points to the fire being the work of an incendiary. It started at the front door. The stable is far away from any houses, and it would hardly be possible for rats to carry matches that distance. There was no electricity on at the time, this having been turned off on Saturday afternoon.

Superintendent Jesse E. Johnson of the Coal Works this morning stated that there were suspicions of two guilty persons, and that rigid investigation would be made.

Fire in Same Spot as Before

Flames Do Damage to Extent of $100 at Home of Geo. Leyda

When Joseph Bosock, 22 years old, an Eleventh street Slavish resident, attempted to swim the river from a point near the Charleroi Coal tipple yesterday afternoon, he was miscalculated in his ability, and was drowned. The man, it is said, was intoxicated and wanted to bet another $50 that he could swim the stream. A companion with him was said to be intoxicated, and Bosock pulled off his clothing and waded in. About 30 feet out from shore, he went down and failed to come up. A boy who was in bathing managed to grasp him, but could not hold the man up until assistance arrived.

The accident occurred at about 2:30 o'clock, and about 4 o'clock the body was recovered by Mike Spridik, who dove for it. He secured the body in his first dive in about 10 feet of water, and it was taken to the undertakers' rooms of Corral and Crowley. Coroner James T. Heffran was notified. Bosock was a Macheth-Evans chimney worker, and had no relatives living here. Adam Patrick, a boy of about 10 years and Louis Peters about 17 years old, saw the occurrence but were unable to save the man from drowning.

A Disastrous Period

Sunday was essentially a day of disaster in this community. From the burning of the mine stable, in which 26 horses were cremated, in the early hours of the morning, followed by the disastrous and fatal auto wreck near town, until evening, the day was fraught with accidents and fatalities. A man drowned in the near vicinity, together with numerous other minor accidents and casualties, completed a period that seemed to bring with it a baneful influence.

The dreadful auto accident above Speers, whereby two persons were instantly killed and five others more or less seriously injured, should serve as a warning to the owners and drivers of machines in this community. There is scarcely a mile of road anywhere around here that is not beset with danger. Railroad and trolley crossings, sharp curves, steep grades, crowded streets—all present danger to life and limb at all hours of the day and night. The State road up Maple Creek, with numerous sharp curves and grades, which is the favorite boulevard for autos for all the towns of this section, is destined to be the scene of disastrous accident unless each and every exercises undue caution.

Police officers complain of indifference to speed regulations and defiance of other laws for the safety of the public. These should be strictly enforced and instead of opposing the officials every effort should be made to support them. The safety of the public demands more stringent observance of the law.

Marks an Era

Not since the Civil War, not even during President Roosevelt's administration, has a session of Congress accomplished more constructive legislation than the one just ended. President Taft advocated and stood sponsor for more reform and beneficial measures than any of his predecessors since the Civil War, and the most of them have passed and will become laws. Among others are the following:

Striking revision of the railroad laws, including the creation of a commerce court.

Admitting Arizona and New Mexico as separate States.

Authorizing the establishment of postal savings banks.

Giving to the President unlimited authority to withdraw public lands for conservation purposes.

Providing for publicity of campaign contributions.

Authorizing the issue of $20,000,000 in certificates of indebtedness to complete reclamation projects.

Creating a bureau of mines.

Creating a commission of the tariff board and appropriating $250,000 for its use.

Looking to the suppression of traffic in "white slaves."

Authorizing the entry of the surface of coal lands.

Creating a commission to consider economies in the administration of the Federal Government.

Providing a new tariff system for the Philippine Islands.

Legislation which ultimately is expected to give practical prohibition to the Hawaiian Islands.

Several of the important measures advocated by President Taft failed of passage, but when it is remembered that over 27,000 bills, public and private, were presented to Congress, it could hardly be expected that all of the administrative program could be carried out. The session just closed is an important one, and will mark an era in American history, as many of the measures passed are the beginning of important social reforms.

Would Make Good

While several candidates have been endorsed for the position of Director of the new Bureau of Mines, which was established by the recent session of Congress, there is one not yet mentioned, but who would be highly capable and very satisfactory to miners and operators alike in this section. This is Jesse K. Johnston of Charleroi, superintendent of the Charleroi Coal Works and all the mining interests affiliated with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company.

The Mail has not approached Mr. Johnston on the subject, and has no authority to announce his name as a candidate, but we believe that no one is more capable, nor would fill the position with more ability than our fellow townsman. Mr. Johnston is recognized as one of the most expert mining engineers throughout the bituminous district, and his advice and counsel is sought far and wide. He has made an exhaustive study of modern safety appliances in mining, and his system of underground life-saving stations in coal mines, which was embodied in a speech before Congress by Representative John K. Tener, has attracted wide attention in mining circles. Mr. Johnston may not be at all in accord with such an appointment, but there is no more capable expert than he, and as head of the Mining Bureau substantial results would follow.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Patent insides are not altogether advisable for a newspaper to use, for the reason that the regular shipment after lands in some other port than the one intended.

If there is cold weather, with a prediction of warm weather it's "relief;" if it's warmer than we imagine Satan's heat can be, and a cooler atmosphere is expected, it's "relief;" if it's raining in torrents, and the weather man says a clear sky is on the program, it's "relief;" if we haven't had any rain for weeks and to weep would be a waste of water, the weather prognosticator says rain, it's "relief." Now what does such a word mean to an ignorant man?

Walter C. and Jay Reeves were over Sunday visitors with their sister, Mrs. William Vance near Carmichaels.

Mrs. Frank Gilmore, Sr., and daughter Flora Bell of Pittsburgh after a few days visit with Mrs. Gilmore's sister-in-law, Mrs. Gillbert Baker of Washington avenue, left today for Donora, where they will visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar R. Abell and children spent Sunday in California with relatives.

John White and Morgan Aker of Brownsville were visitors in Charleroi yesterday.

The Ham Fair at Paris.

A feature of Parisian life is the ham fair which is held on the Boulevard Richard Le Noir. The name of this fair is wholly misleading, for as far as I have ever seen hams are the very last thing any one ever buys there.

Old brass and copper curios, quaint jewelry, rare chinis, lace, tapestries and books are what most people go out to seek, and a sight not to be easily forgotten is the long, wide boulevard lined with ramshackle stalls laden with every possible kind of lumber and presided over by the most rapacious of brocanteurs. Out of piles of valueless lumber Americans and English diligently seek for their pet kind of furniture, but it is not an art in Paris who cannot point to some bit of furniture in his or her studio and say with pride, "I got that for 5 francs at the ham fair." No one ever pays more than 5 francs, I notice, but, alas, every year these five franc bargains are becoming more rare, and even as housekeeping in Paris grows more and more costly so does the furnishing of one's house to keep.—London Queen.

SAMPLE SHOE STORE

Only a Question of Possibility.

Among the customers of a tea store opened in the northwest part of the city the other night was a man who, after buying a pound of coffee, handed a counterfeit half dollar to the shopkeeper.

"This money is counterfeit; I'm sorry, sir," said the shopkeeper.

"Yes; I know it," replied the customer, grinning. "Got it here one day last week and I've been saving it for you." Then noting the smile upon the shopkeeper's face, the customer said evidently offended. "Perhaps you doubt my word?"

"Oh, not at all, sir; not at all. I couldn't doubt the word of so truthful a man. I was simply smiling because I wondered how it was possible for you to have got the money here. This place was opened only night before last."

Thereupon the customer departed, basing after producing a good coin and slipping the counterfeit into his own pocket.—Philadelphia Times.

Lancashire Humor.

There was a Lancashire collier who went out on Sunday with his wheelbarrow because, as he said, "I've lost my dog, an' a felly looks sick a foot-a-walkin' bi himself."

Then there was the workingmen's club committee which wanted to endorse the accounts "audited and found correct and tuppence over" and the customer who, on being told that the price of candles had gone up owing to the war, asked whether they were "feightin' bi candle lect."

Also one recalls the laggard Lancashire lover who, when asked for a kiss, said he was "gooin' to do it in a bit," and the old ladies who praised a certain Darwin clergyman as a "grand burfer," and of the orator who translated "Dieu et mon droit" into "Evil be to him what evil thinks!"—Lancashire Life and Character, by Frank Orme rod.

Japan's Giant Wrestlers.

Japanese wrestlers are not to be confused with Japanese exponents of jiu jitsu. The wrestlers belong to the older school, in which weight is a paramount quality. It is a remarkable thing that a race which is on the average four or five inches under the European standard in point of height should have produced a special cult of wrestlers who are giants in stature.

and strength. 1,55 leading wrestlers of Tokyo or Osaka or Hiogo are all men at least six feet in height and weighing perhaps 300 pounds. They are a race apart. Wrestling is an occupation which has been handed down from father to son for many generations. And the explanation of their prowess is that they have always been meat eaters, while the rest of Japan, either from choice or necessity, have been in the main vegetarians.

Diamonds Under Water.

An imitation diamond is never so brilliant as a genuine stone. If your eye is not experienced enough to detect the difference, a very simple test is to place the stone under water. The imitation stone is practically extinguished, while a genuine diamond sparkles even under water and is distinctly visible. When possible, place a genuine stone beside the possible imitation under water, and the contrast will be apparent to the least experienced eyes.

Consistent Theory.

"Don't you believe the husband is the head of the house and should have the final say?"

"Certainly I do."

"Then why don't you come out in the open and say so?"

"Because my wife won't let me."

Exchange.

Well Trained.

Mrs. Boggs—Mr. Meekman is a splendid example of what a man ought to be. Mr. Boggs—not at all. He's a splendid example of what a wife, two sisters, a grownup daughter and a mother-in-law think a man ought to be.

Reckless.

"Aw, come on!" the little boy was heard to remark. "Be a sport. I'll bet yer any amount of money up to 5 cents."—Harper's.

True Happiness.

About the happiest man in the world should be he that, having a fad, is able to make a living at it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The arrow that pierces the eagle's breast is often made of his own feathers.

Tennyson Disturbed.

This story is told in Robert H. Sherard's book "My Friends the French."

"A granddaughter of Wordsworth, being full of admiration for the young poet who was to succeed her grandfather in laureate honors, was once taken to see Mr. Tennyson by Mrs. Taylor, the wife of another poet of some distinction. Tennyson received them very badly, showing great irritation at being disturbed, and when Mrs. Taylor rallied him on his manner he said: "Madam, I am a poor man and as I can't afford to buy the Times I hire it from the stationer's. He charges me a penny for it, which entitles me to keep it for an hour. Why will people always select just that hour to come and call upon me?" After which he flung out of the room, leaving Mrs. Tennyson to apologize for his brusquerie."

Currency in China.

Writing from the interior of China, a traveler says: "Currency is primitive to a degree. Lump silver only is used and copper 'cash.' Coined money is not current. Even in Ilonan city, which is distant only two days by rail from Pekin, lump silver, the same cumbersome currency that has been used for centuries, is still employed. It is cut into small pieces by hammer and chisel. Every town and village has its own weights and scales, and there is no pretense at uniformity."

The Man and the Parrot.

Exasperated Purchaser—Didn't you guarantee that this parrot would repeat every word he heard?

Bird Dealer—Certainly I did.

"But he doesn't repeat a single word."

"He repeats every word he hears, but he never hears any. He is as deaf as a post."

Life's Percentages.

It sometimes happens that a man plays an errorless game because he accepts mighty few chances. The man in the right garden is pretty sure to have a better fielding record than the shortstop.—Athletic Globe.

Outrageous.

"He doted on Alice and would have married her but for her mother."

"Ah!" Her mother.

"Yes; her mother was still more attractive."

The Animals in the Zoo.
The sleeping hours of the animals at the zoological gardens in Regent's park vary as much according to the families to which they belong, as do their other characteristics and habits. The orang outang goes to bed at sunset, draping its head in a blanket and refusing to see visitors after dusk. It is also an early riser. With the lions, tigers and other members of the cat tribe the night finds them at their liveliest, and they sleep most between the midday meal and supper time. The eagles go to sleep just about the time their neighbors in the owl cage are waking up, while the bears during the winter months apparently sleep all day and night too. The residents of the monkey house object seriously to being disturbed after dark, and if one of the keepers happens to take a light into their quarters they scold him unmercifully. On the other hand, it would probably take dynamite bombs to arouse the rhinoceros, and it is not uncommon, the keepers say, to find rats biting holes in its thick hide with impunity.—London Mail.

A Ban on Patterns.
"There is one kind of correspondence sometimes received by women clerks that makes heads of firms hopping mad," said the pretty stenographer. "That is dress patterns. They don't mind letters and magazines, but if a girl wants to keep on good terms with her employer and maybe keep her job she had better advise pattern companies to send their communications to some other address. I know one employer of about 100 girls who has put up notices in the workroom to the effect that no patterns can be received at that office. Not many men go that far, but all hold the same grudge against patterns. A girl who has a new dress to make up can't help spreading the pattern out the minute she gets it. Then every other woman in the office becomes interested. Nothing is so disorganized to women clerks as patterns. Nothing takes up more time than belongs to the firm, so you really can't blame the bosses for putting a ban on patterns."—New York Press.

Japan's National Beverage.
Sake is the national beverage of Japan. It has a peculiar flavor not comparable to any European drink, is made from fermented rice by an intricate process in winter time and contains from 11 to 14 per cent of alcohol. It is a necessary constituent of every ceremonial Japanese dinner, is served in little, ampulla-like jars and drunk with much formality from squat, less sake cups containing approximately two ounces. To the European palate it tastes sour at first, but preference for it is readily acquired. Curiously enough, it has a much more powerful effect on the Japanese than on Europeans. A stronger variety, shochu, contains from 20 to 50 per cent of alcohol. Another form, mirin, is more or less a liqueur.—London Lancet.

The Great Eastern.
The dimensions of the one time world famous Great Eastern were as follows: Length, 602 feet; width, 83 feet; depth, 60 feet; tonnage, 24,000 tons; draft when unloaded, 20 feet; when loaded, 30 feet. She had paddle wheels fifty-six feet in diameter and was also provided with a four-bladed screw propeller of twenty-four feet diameter. She had accommodations for 800 first class, 2,000 second class and 1,200 third class passengers, 4,000 in all. Her speed was about eighteen miles an hour. The Great Eastern was finally broken up for old iron in the year 1889 after a checkered career of some thirty-one years.

Fair, but Stormy.
A gentleman boarded the Karori car at Kelburne avenue. Recognizing a friend on one of the seats, he nodded pleasantly and then said, "Well, what do you think of the weather?" "Oh, horrible!" was the reply. "And how is your wife today?" "She's just about the same, thank you."—New Zealand Free Lance.

A Beautiful Lake.
Perhaps the most striking instance to be seen in the whole world of the wonderful apparent coloring of bodies of water is the marvelously beautiful blue lake in Switzerland. Enclosed on all sides by lofty mountains, their lower ranges luxuriantly clothed with verdure down to the edge of the water and adorned with many fine forest trees, while their higher acclivities are garbed in a mantle of eternal snow, the little lake, nestling in its deep hollow basin and protected from winds and storms, is quite startling in its singular and strange beauty. The water, although really pure and colorless, appears to be of a most vivid and intense sky blue. And its transparency is so remarkable that a small nickel coin dropped into the water in the center of the lake can be seen gyrating downward until it reaches the bottom, apparently more than a hundred feet beneath.

His Recommendation.
Tom—Hello, Bill! I hear you have a position with my friends Skinner & Co.? Bill—Oh, yes; I have a position as collector there. Tom—That's first rate. Who recommended you? Bill—Oh, nobody. I told them that I once collected an account from you, and they instantly gave me the place.

Firmness of Purpose.
Firmness of purpose is one of the most necessary sinews of character and one of the best instruments of success. Without it genius wastes its efforts in a maze of inconsistencies.

A Paradox.
Little Willie—Say, pa, what is a paradox? Pa—Well, my son, a coal store is one kind of paradox. It won't burn until it is put up; then it won't burn until it is shaken down.—Chicago News.

Hit Him Coming and Going.
An attorney went to a livery stable and hired a team for two or three hours and at the end of that time, in a state of absentmindedness, left the team at another livery stable, where it remained eight days. At stable No. 1 there was no worry about the team. They knew the attorney was perfectly good for the pay. They knew that if he kept the team a month the bill would be paid promptly on presentation. They presumed that he knew what he was about and concluded it was his business and not theirs. At stable No. 2 there was equal freedom from anxiety. The attorney came there, left the team and went away, saying nothing. They put the horse into a stall and "chukked it down" on the office slate, knowing him to be a business man who paid cash. Discovery came at last, and the lawyer was presented with two bills, one for eight days' hire and the other for eight days' keep. He paid both bills promptly, but it cured him of being absentminded for nearly a whole month.

The Coffee Cup in Persia.
The expression "to give a cup of coffee" has in Persia a somewhat ominous significance. This is due to the fact that the coffee cup is one recognized medium for conveying poison. Some years ago the governor of Aspadana, having long been at daggers drawn with the chief of a powerful mountain tribe, determined in this way to put an end to all trouble. He professed to entertain a great degree of friendship and esteem for the chieftain and invited him to visit him at his palace. The chieftain unsuspectingly came, accompanied by his two young sons. For a week they were royally entertained. But at last one morning when the chieftain came into his host's presence he was coldly received, and an attendant soon stepped forward with a single cup of coffee in his hand, which he offered to the guest. The latter could not fail to understand that he was doomed. Preferring, however, steel to poison, he declined the cup and was thereupon, at a signal from his host, stabbed to death.

Salad of the Shoes.
Freshmen have troubles the world over. The "conscripts," as they are called at the famous Ecole Polytechnique in Paris, are subjected to an amusing initiation called the salad of shoes. The freshmen report some days before the upper class men so that they can receive their uniforms and become familiar with the routine of the school. The first morning after their tormentors return the freshmen are aroused by a demand that they throw their shoes out of the windows into the courtyard. The shoes are gathered into a heap, and, kneeling in a big circle around this, the freshmen are obliged to go through some ridiculous gymnastic movements at the command of their superiors. When the study bell rings they have but a minute to appear in the class rooms, and it is a strenuous minute around that pile of shoes.

Pottery and Secrecy.
In the royal manufactory of pottery at Meissen-Saxony, the work was formerly carried on with the utmost secrecy to prevent the processes from becoming known elsewhere. The establishment was a complete fortress, the portcullis of which was not raised day or night, no stranger being permitted to enter for any purpose whatever. Every workman, even the chief inspector, was sworn to silence. This injunction was formally repeated every month to the superior officers employed, while the workmen had constantly before their eyes in large letters the warning motto, "Be Secret Unto Death." It was well known that any person divulging the process would be imprisoned for life in the castle of Koenigstein. Even the king himself when he took strangers of distinction to visit the works was enjoined to secrecy. One of the foremen, however, escaped and assisted in establishing a manufactory in Vienna, from which the secrets spread all over Germany.

Her Diamond Necklace.
Brown is a very careful man. He is superlatively careful. So careful is he that he has insured his diamonds money.

Now, Brown has a wife. Wives have to be given birthday presents, and on his wife's first birthday after their marriage he gave her a beautiful diamond necklace. This was not as reckless as you might think, for each stone on the necklace represented a year of Mrs. Brown's life, and he let every one know that. And he arranged to give Mrs. Brown a new diamond each birthday. And he let the neighbors know that too.

He has just missed giving his wife a birthday present for the ninth successive year.

As to when greed will conquer pride and his wife will ask for another birthday present, we shall have to wait and see.—Pearson's.

The Salt Charm Failed.
Some three years before the Franco-German war broke out Count Seckendorf accompanied King William I. on his visit to Napoleon III. and was present at the celebrated déjeuner given in the Pavilion de Diane at Fontainebleau. King William, who was sitting next the empress, was asked by her to pass the salt, and in complying with this request he threw a little salt over his shoulder. Upon the express exclaiming, "Why do you do that?" the king explained that in his country it was the custom to do so when passing the salt to ward off bad luck and any chance of a quarrel. The empress in a prettily turned speech at once replied, "But surely there is no danger of anything interfering with our friendship." In less than three years the German's had crossed the Rhine.—London Spectator.

Why Not Pass the Plate?
They ought to pass the plate at church weddings. It comes natural to do it in church, and to do so would add a pretty and useful employment to the duties of the ushers, who always have a little spare time before the bride arrives. And, really, getting married is more expensive than ever, and though wedding presents are excellent in their way, what the young people usually need the most is cash. Instead of the list of gifts which the newspapers sometimes print we should read, "The collection yielded $1,000,000." That would be nice. It is much easier to store and care for money than plate and glass. And money always fits and there is no such thing as an embarrassing duplication of dollars.—Life.

He Saved the Patent Office.
When in the war of 1812 the British, who had taken Washington, trained their guns upon the patent office, Dr. Thornton, throwing himself directly before the guns, cried:

"Are you Englishmen or Goths and Vandals? This is the patent office—a depository of the ingenuity and inventions of the American nation, in which the whole civilized world is interested. Would you destroy it? Then let the charge pass through my body."

And the building was spared. Twenty-four years afterward, however, it was destroyed by fire, together with everything in it.

Getting Down to Business.

Mistress (to new servant)—There are two things, Mary, about which I am very particular. They are truthfulness and obedience. Mary—Yes, m'm, and when you tell me to say you're not in when a person calls that you don't wish to see which is it to be, m'm—truthfulness or obedience?

Defined.
Precious Child—Papa, tell me what is numbness? Parent (with a deep drawn sigh)—It is, my dear, when your mamma pretends to be very fond of me and puts too buttons on my shirt.

He who loves goodness harbors angels.—Emerson.

A Pearl Stringer's Keen Eye.
The pearl stringer's eye becomes practiced in the detection of real and imitation pearls. One glance is generally sufficient. A genuine pearl has a hard look. It presents a sort of shell-like surface with an indescribable blush. This blush is so cleverly counterfeited in wax imitations that even those who are accustomed to handling pearls day after day are likely to be deceived.

In one of the large New York jewelry houses last winter a customer purchased a hand painted miniature set in a frame of imitation pearls. On examination it was found that several of the pearls had been slightly defaced, and the whole thing was sent to the manufacturing rooms for repairs. By chance it came under the eye of one of the pearl stringers, who instantly detected four genuine pearls in the circle of imitation ones about the picture. The frame had passed through a dozen expert hands without any one's noticing the presence of real pearls. No one could account for their being there. If they had not been detected the purchaser of the frame would have had a bargain, for the four genuine pearls were worth more than the entire picture and the rest of its setting.—New York Tribune.

Spirit of Young America.
A teacher in a Philadelphia public school narrated the following account of how an aspiring young Italian citizen was beginning to show the effects of an American environment. The story, which was told at a teachers' association meeting, runs something like this:

Tony had been away from school about a week, and when he showed up one morning the teacher asked him where he had been.

"I ran away," said Tony.

"Ran away? What did you do that for?" asked the teacher.

"My father was going to tickle me, so I thought I'd run away," was the reply.

The teacher by further questioning brought out the fact that Tony for some trifling dereliction had been threatened with a beating and had stayed away from home the best part of a week.

"But your father has the right to whip you," said the teacher.

"Yes, he may," added Tony, "but I was born in this country, and I don't want no foreigners to tickle me."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Costa Rican Volcanoes.
Costa Rica has been subject to earthquakes for many years. Part of the republic is exceedingly mountainous, and in this part of the country there are more than a score of volcanoes, some of them dead, but a few that break out periodically. There are three or four that have been active for more than a century. Some of these are near San Jose, the capital. Costa Ricans have always believed that when passing the salt to ward off bad luck and any chance of a quarrel. The empress in a prettily turned speech at once replied, "But surely there is no danger of anything interfering with our friendship." In less than three years the German's had crossed the Rhine.—London Spectator.

Why Not Pass the Plate?
They ought to pass the plate at church weddings. It comes natural to do it in church, and to do so would add a pretty and useful employment to the duties of the ushers, who always have a little spare time before the bride arrives. And, really, getting married is more expensive than ever, and though wedding presents are excellent in their way, what the young people usually need the most is cash. Instead of the list of gifts which the newspapers sometimes print we should read, "The collection yielded $1,000,000."

That would be nice. It is much easier to store and care for money than plate and glass. And money always fits and there is no such thing as an embarrassing duplication of dollars.—Life.

A Witty Retort.
A good story is told of two great Irishmen, the late Archbishop Plunkett and Father Healy, the well known parish priest of Bray. Making their way together to Bray railroad station one morning, the priest urged that they should hurry, but the prelate's appeal to his watch convinced him that they had ample time. They arrived to see the train for Dublin disappear. The archbishop's apologies were lavish. He pleaded that he had always had unbounded faith in his watch. "My dear Lord Plunkett," was Father Healy's rejoinder, "faith won't do without the good works."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Enthusiasm.
The organist sent a little boy to inquire of the minister what the first hymn would be. "Tell her," said the minister. "I would like 'Carol Brothers Carol'."

The little boy thought he said "Howl, Brothers, Howl," and told the organist that the minister's selection was "Tell, Brothers, Tell."—New York Times.

Runs in the Family.
Mr. Agile (to Mr. Stoutman, running for a car)—Hello, old boy! I thought you were too lazy to run like that. Mr. Stoutman (ingrumpily)—Easily explained, my dear boy. Laziness runs in our family.—Lippincott's.

Suspended Animation.
"What is suspended animation?"

"It's what happens at an afternoon tea when the very woman they have been talking about enters the room."—Puck.
